ELIGIBILITY

This form must be completed and submitted with the required entry fee per submission. Projects must be located in Vermont and be accessible to the public. Submissions may range from mature projects in place and in use to conceptual studies, plans, regulations to encourage public space, connective corridors, and networks of public spaces, or other endeavors and incentives to create, preserve, or enhance individual interior or exterior public space or linked open spaces in Vermont. Submissions may include, but are not limited to open space associated with:

Historic Preservation

Community Planning

Recreation Planning & Design

Urban & Community Forestry

Green Infrastructure Planning

Public Interiors

Campus Planning & Design

Transportation Planning

Wildlife Management

Downtown and Village Center Plans

Corridors should establish circuits linking as many local public areas or open spaces as possible, connecting community centers to surrounding countryside and, in the process, expanding opportunities for public recreation, and increasing the community value and ecosystem services of these public areas or open spaces. Corridors should seek to maximize use of existing terrains whenever possible, whether ridge lines, river valleys, abandoned railroad lines, existing roads, or other appropriate natural or cultural features, with an emphasis on accessible/universal access.

Projects should stimulate awareness about the benefits of creating public spaces, and/or linking downtowns and village centers or city neighborhoods with outlying natural areas devoted to conservation, working lands, and recreation.

Landscape Architects, Planners, Architects, Professional Engineers, Foresters, Municipal Officials, Individuals, Educational Institutions, Non-Profits, and Community Groups are all encouraged to make submissions.

SUBMISSIONS

Submissions must include a brief synopsis that outlines the design issue, community concern, local objective, or environmental matters, and how the space, corridor, plan, or solution addresses them. The form of the submissions is left to the entrant, but at least a digital submission of photographs and/or drawings is required for all design projects. The submission could also contain:

- A combination of photographs and text is highly recommended.
- A maximum of 10 photographs and/or drawings which should be cleared for publication.
- Text should be limited to 2 pages.
- Maps or figures of the location and details.

SCHEDULE
