SCHEDULE:

- Entry form and fees due September 25, 2010
- Project submissions due October 25, 2010
- Jury convenes the week of October 30 or November 7, 2010
- Awards to be presented at the AIA-Vermont Annual Meeting in December 2010. All entries will also be displayed in a traveling show during 2010-11.

ELIGIBILITY:

AIA-Vermont members, associate members and/or architects registered and residing in Vermont are eligible to submit entries. Projects may be located anywhere in the world and must have been substantially completed since January 1, 2003, except for the specific categories as indicated below. Multiple entries are permissible. All materials included in project submissions must be cleared for public reproduction.

JUDGING CRITERIA:

The Jury will consider projects for awards in the following categories. A project may receive an award in one category only.

1. Older Public Project: For a built public project completed 25 or more years ago.
2. Recent Public Project: For a built public project substantially completed since January 1, 2003.
3. New Directions: For a built project design that challenges the imagination.
4. Sustainability: For a built public or private design that exemplifies sustainability in a highly effective blend of aesthetics, function, and durability.
5. Historic Renovation/Preservation: For a built or un-built design that represents an exceptionally sensitive and creative approach to historic renovation/preservation.
6. Interior Architecture: For a built design that emphasizes interior landscape.
7. Architecture as Landscape: For a built design that emphasizes a relationship with the exterior landscape.
8. Small Project: For a built design of less than 1,000 sq. ft. in area or less than $100,000 in construction cost.
9. Proposed Project: For an un-built or proposed project that represents exceptional design value.
10. AIA-Vermont Honor Award: For a sustainable project that represents exceptional value beyond a single category and is worthy of special recognition.

Jurors will consider the essential virtues of each submitted project. These values must be made immediately clear and well documented within the submission format below. (Special consideration will be given to sustainability across all categories)

Entries will be judged individually, regardless of type.

Entries may be submitted without identifying a specific category or categories. The jury will consider the applicable categories. Any entry may be considered for more than one category, but an entry can receive an award in only one category; jurors may or may not determine that awards are justified in all categories.
